This was the reality for Joseph Kim, who grew up in North Korea during one of the country's worst famines. As a child, he watched as his family and friends slowly starved to death. He himself was so hungry that he would often eat grass and insects just to stay alive.

In 2000, Joseph made the perilous decision to defect from North Korea. He crossed the frozen Tumen River into China, where he was met with hostility and suspicion. He was eventually arrested and sent to a detention center, where he was tortured and beaten.

Despite the hardships he faced, Joseph never gave up hope. He knew that if he could just make it to America, he would finally be free.

In 2003, Joseph's dream came true. He was granted asylum in the United States, where he was reunited with his brother, who had defected several years earlier.

Since arriving in America, Joseph has dedicated his life to helping others who have escaped from North Korea. He founded the organization Liberty in North Korea, which provides food, shelter, and medical care to defectors.

Joseph's story is a testament to the power of hope and the resilience of the human spirit. It is a story that will inspire you to never give up on your dreams, no matter how difficult they may seem.
