Tennis Champion, Sports Legend, and Cultural Heroine: The Extraordinary Story of Althea Gibson

Althea Gibson was born in 1927 in Silver, South Carolina. She was the youngest of five children, and her family was poor. Gibson's father was a sharecropper, and her mother was a domestic worker. Despite her humble beginnings, Gibson showed an early talent for tennis. She began playing at the age of 12, and by the time she was 16, she had won several local tournaments.

In 1950, Gibson moved to New York City to pursue her tennis career. She quickly made a name for herself, and in 1951, she became the first African American woman to play in the US Open. Gibson went on to win the US Open in 1957 and 1958, becoming the first African American woman to win a Grand Slam tournament.
