Born to a white mother and a Zulu father in the heart of the South African countryside, Wendy was an anomaly from the start. Her skin was white, her hair was blonde, and her eyes were blue. But despite her physical differences, she was raised as a Zulu child, immersed in the culture and traditions of her father's people.

In this extraordinary memoir, Wendy shares her unique and unforgettable story. She writes about her childhood in a rural Zulu village, her education in both the Zulu and white worlds, and her struggles with identity and belonging. She also writes about the challenges and triumphs of raising her own children in a multiracial world.

Third World Child Born White is a powerful and inspiring story of resilience, identity, and triumph. It is a story that will resonate with anyone who has ever felt different or who has ever struggled to find their place in the world.
